

1963 CHEOY LEE FRISCO FLYER 23'. Fiberglass bare hull. Owner says, "I've had the boat for quite awhile now; I took it in barter for re-varnishing a vintage Chris Craft. It came as a bare hull with many pieces, including the sails which I've kept put away and covered except for an occasional airing, the tiller, the shaft, ss standing rigging, the fuel tank, control levers, a fair amount of other miscellaneous hardware and what must be every fastener that was ever taken out of it.

Whoever took it apart made many, many little labeled bags but by the time I got the boat they'd evolved into little bags with clean, white pieces of paper attached. I'm pretty sure that the parts I have are original Frisco Flyer parts. It's sitting now in a field at some friends' place (easily accessible, let me hasten to say) but they are selling and have asked me to take the boat away by the end of April. I don't have any place to put it and I can't afford the yard rates around Annapolis and anyway, I've had the boat for several years without doing anything with it, so I think it's best to find it a home with someone who's looking for a project. The hull is sound and has beautiful lines and it comes with five jackstands. There's a lot of information on Frisco Flyers around and at least two incarnations of the design that I know of so, whoever takes it would have the choice of building their own design on the hull or getting the original specs and building a reproduction." 1962 CRUISERS INC. 18' (top of next column)

1962 CRUISERS INC. 18'. Classic lapstrake wooden boat. Owner says, "Excellent condition, lake ready. Last on the water in fall of 2006. 95% restored in 2005/6. Original owner purchased new from dealer. 1966 Johnson 100 HP outboard (new wiring harness in 2005). Includes canvas canopy and single axle trailer. Current on all licenses including trailer, boat and also have titles on both. The history behind the boat is that it was my Dad's and now I have it and it has been kept very nice. The motor runs and has been painted some years back. I know that boat like the back of my hand, even though I am a girl. I would love to find it a good home. That has always been my goal."
